HENRY C. SHAW

HARVARD COLLEGE

HENRY CORLISS SHAW was killed in the line of duty in a motor accident in France on May 28, 1918. He is the only member of the class to lose his life in the war. He was doing Y. M. C. A. work at the front and in his brief period of service had some interesting and exciting experiences and was able to accomplish much. He had been practicing law in Boston and gave up his practice to enter this service. As one of the most enthusiastic and delightful members of the class he will be missed by all of us.

FIFTH REPORT

PRIVATELY PRINTED FOR THE CLASS BY THE PLIMPTON PRESS · NORWOOD · MASSACHUSETTS

SECRETARY'S PREFACE

To the MEMBERS OF HARVARD 1901

The records of our men in the great war, or rather such of these records as your Secretary has been able to gather together, are included in this report which is the Fifth Report issued by the Class. The work of 337 men is covered by the report, and of these men 62 served in France and 9 received citations and decorations. One man was killed in the line of duty, and several men died during the war from disease resulting from service to the country.

The Secretary feels that the report, though by no means complete, will be of interest and value as a permanent record of the work done by 1901 in the war.

DONORS OF CARS NOS. 723 AND 150
BEARING INSCRIPTION
"HARVARD CLASS OF 1901, NO I"
AND "NO II"

Ambulance No. 723 left for the front June 17, 1917, as a part of Section Sanitaire No. 28 and was attached to the 134th Division of the French Army, operating in the Champagne Sector. While this section was cantoned at Mourmelon le Grand, serving the advanced "poste de secours" of Village Gascon, six of the drivers were killed or wounded. Car No. 150 was used by the chief of the construction and repair park at Billancourt and contributed in a large measure to the efficiency and quickness necessary in the repair of ambulances and staff cars. When the American Field Service was federalized, these cars were turned over to the United States Army Ambulance Service with the French Army.

Acted as Chief of Staff of 11th Division for seven weeks, and in charge of Divisional School of Arms. Organized the 72nd Infantry. Commanded this regiment and later the 63rd Regular Infantry.

Held the rank of Captain up to August 5, 1917; Major, August 5, 1917; Lieutenant Colonel, August 5, 1917, to October 20, 1918, when promoted to rank of Colonel.

Have served at Fort Bliss, El Paso, Texas; 1st and 2nd Training Camps, Fort Benjamin Harrison, Indiana; Camp Pike, Arkansas; Office of the Chief Signal Officer, Air Division, Washington, D. C.; Spruce Production Division, commanding Grays Harbor and Willapa Bay District, Aberdeen, Washington; Camp Meade, Maryland; Camp East Potomac Park, Washington, D. C.; 3rd District Headquarters, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania. Received all training and accomplished all production at above places.

Assisted in the Third Liberty Loan drive at Aberdeen, Washington, and in the Fifth Liberty Loan Drive at Philadelphia, Pennsylvania.

Was cited for Distinguished Service Medal for services in the production of airplane material on February 11, 1919.

FROM Commanding General

Feb. 11, 1919

To Director of Aircraft Production, Washington, D. C. Subject: Recommendation for Distinguished Service Medal.

1. In accordance with the Act of Congress, approved July 9, 1918, as published in Bulletin No. 43, War Department, 1918, it is recommended that a Distinguished Service Medal be awarded Lieutenant-Colonel Henry T. Bull, Air Service, AP.

2. This officer was on duty with the Division from March 23, 1918, to August 17, 1918, his responsibilities were very great at all times and his conduct throughout his service has been honorable.

- 3. Colonel Bull, one of the few regular officers of this Division, was placed in command of the Grays Harbor and Willapa Bay District, which included all operations bordering on the Pacific Ocean, north of the Columbia River and south of Tacoma. This was one of the largest and most important districts operated by this Division. Colonel Bull had command of the military personnel in this District which numbered approximately 4000 men. They were engaged in railroad construction, truck road building, riving and logging and were scattered in isolated districts in the heart of the forest. Under great difficulties, Colonel Bull maintained a high esprit de corps and state of discipline among his officers and men and obtained, through his personality, administrative and ceaseless vigilance, the maximum amount of work from his command. Colonel Bull's command stood out as one of the best disciplined and most efficient organizations of the Division. His services, which entailed the responsibility of producing in a minimum time a maximum amount of lumber, were performed in a distinguished manner.
- 4. The above service was rendered at a time when the Division was being organized from raw recruits and untrained officers, for the purpose of securing a 1500% increase in production of airplane lumber. The operations of the Division involved constant and intimate relations with 150,000 civilian lumbermen and over 500 lumber mill and logging camp operations, over a mountainous country 500 miles long, in which the Division was scattered in 234 different camps and stations, constructing railways, mills, etc., in a climate with an annual rainfall averaging over eight feet. Through the exceptional and conspicuously meritorious service of such men, the war period was passed without a single case of friction with civilian or civil authority and the mission of the Division was accomplished in spite of continuous I. W. W. agitation and pro-enemy propaganda.

5. I have had approximately 30,000 officers and men under my command during the past fifteen months and of them am recommending a total of twenty for this recognition of service. I sincerely believe in their award and regard it as a necessary mark of appreciation from our government if, in its next emergency, we are to look for the same quality of service to the rear of active operations as we have had in this one, and a service which is so vital, and to my own knowledge, more heartbreaking than anything man is called upon to endure.

ROGER OGDEN BURTON

Occupation: Manufacturer

Address: Pondfield Road, Bronxville, N. Y.

MAKING soldiers' uniforms.

STEPHEN HAYES BUSH

Occupation: Professor of Romance Languages

Address: Iowa City, Iowa

ENTERED the service of the United States Army on December 24, 1917, and received my discharge on July 20, 1919.

During November and December, 1917, was Chairman of Committee for Y. M. C. A. fund raising in the University of Iowa.

As the leader of a party of five I was with the Foyer du Soldat, especially attached to Première Division Marocaine for special Y. M. C. A. Army Service from January to December, 1918. This was the only party attached to a French division during hostilities. The division consisted of the Foreign Legion 8 Zouaves and 7 and 4 Tirailleurs. As the leading shock division of the army, work with them was very interesting. The party served the men during all their battles, getting large quantities of supplies under the greatest difficulties.

Served with the above division through the operations at Villers-Bretonneux and Hargard, April 26, 1918, Soissons, May 29-June 1, 1918, Defence of Ambleny, June 12, 1918, Soissons, July 18-21, 1918, and Chemin des Dames at Moulin, Soffaux, etc., September 2, 1918. Was a volunteer with a 75 battery during the German offensive through Soissons in May, 1918. Received the following citation with croix de querre:

Ordre No. 17,111 "D" Extrait

"A servi avec la Division Marocaine au moment où elle brisa la marche offensive de l'ennemi sur Amiens. Plus tard, pendant les operations de Villers-Cotterets a suivi cette unite jusqu'aux tranchées de première ligne se trouvant constamment sous les bombardements ennemis au plus fort de la bataille et s'employant avec sa camionnette au transport des blessés."

AUGUSTUS HEMENWAY EUSTIS

Occupation: Mining Engineer

Address: 131 State Street, Boston, Mass.

ENLISTED in the United States Naval Reserve on September 7, 1918, with the provisional rank of Warrant Boatswain, and was assigned to the United States Steamship "Absaroka," Captain Hughes, on September 19, 1918. Made a voyage on this ship to Bordeaux, France, and on my return to New York, at my request, I was transferred to the Navigation Department as Assistant Navigator. The department consisted of the Navigating Officer and myself. He was also the Second Officer on the ship, and I served with him for the first part of my time as Junior Watch Officer; that is, when he had the bridge, I was his Junior. We sailed from New York on my second trip, touched at Sydney, C. B., Brest, and discharged at Bordeaux.

Perhaps the most interesting part of the experience was the participation in the operation of the ship under war conditions in a large convoy. Leaving Sydney we had forty-six ships. Except in unusual conditions, no lights were used and the ships were kept in close formation night and day. Two ships were lost by collision and one by torpedo, but we saw no enemy vessels and the only shots fired were in target practice. The armistice was signed during our homeward voyage, and we promptly had the use of the lights and other peace-time conveniences. On reaching New York I applied for promotion, and was offered the choice of advancement to Ensign or being retired from active duty. With great reluctance I chose the latter for business reasons.

Assisted in Third Liberty Loan campaign in the Town of Milton.

FREDERIC A. EUSTIS

Occupation: Metallurgical and Mining Engineer Address: 131 State Street, Boston, Mass.

WENT to Washington unasked in February, 1917, to urge our Government to build ships. I succeeded in interesting the Shipping Board in the matter and worked with them until February 1, 1919, when I resigned to return to my private business. I was instrumental in the formation of the Government's first plan for shipbuilding and in the creation of the United States Shipping Board Emergency Fleet Corporation. General Goethals dismissed me from active participation in the management of that Company on June 8, 1917. Thereafter I continued to work for the Shipping Board. I interested them in removing ships from the Great Lakes to help relieve the shortage on the ocean, and from August, 1917, until my resignation, was in charge of their office in Cleveland, Ohio, handling this work.

The Shipping Board accepted my resignation on January 18, 1919, with these words: "Be it resolved that his resignation be accepted with regret and that the Board hereby records its sense of deep appreciation for his invaluable services, and expresses to him the unanimous well wishes of its members"

RICHARD A. FEISS

Occupation: General Manager, The Clothcraft Shops

Address: Cleveland, O.

SHORTLY after war broke out I was called into consultation by members of the Committee of Supply of the Council of National Defense on matters relating to army clothing; also in connection with the Storage Committee. Was actively interested in the organization of the Supply Division of the Ordnance Department.

Beginning November 5, 1917, I acted as an adviser to Colonel H. J. Hirsch of the Quartermaster Department at Washington, in charge of purchases of clothing and equipage. Later on, when he was appointed in charge of the Clothing and Equipage Division of the Quartermaster's office, I acted as his chief civilian adviser. At special request of Quartermaster General Major General Henry G. Sharpe, I was put in charge of revision of specifications for army clothing. Upon the reorganization of the Quartermaster General Department, January 21, 1918, I was made Chief of the Manufacturing Branch of the Clothing and Equipage Division by the then acting Quartermaster General, George W. Goethals, and had charge of the manufacture of all articles of army clothing, tentage and other textile products furnished by the Quartermaster Department. Assisted in the reorganization of the Quartermaster Department. Resigned from active duty May 1, 1919.

During the various War Chest, Liberty Loan, and other drives I was active on the different committees.

WILLIAM T. FOSTER

Occupation: President, Reed College

Address: Portland, Ore.

AS sent to Europe in 1917 by the American Red Cross as one of a commission of six inspectors to investigate the entire work of the Red Cross and allied organizations, and report to this country. On my return I made one hundred or more addresses in a score of states in the interests of the Red Cross and the successful conduct of the war, under the auspices of the Red Cross and the National Chamber of Commerce.

As one of the six college presidents sent to Washington by the American Association of Colleges I assisted in devising plans for putting the colleges of the country at the service of the War Department. Was the author of the first report submitted to the War Department embodying the essential features of the plan which was later adopted, and put into operation in about five hundred colleges, as the Students' Army Training Corps.

Organized the Students' Army Training Corps at Reed College.

SANFORD H. E. FREUND

Occupation: Assistant General Counsel, United States Railroad Administration

Address: Metropolitan Club, Washington, D. C.

WAS connected with organizing the United States Boys' Working Reserve in the Department of Labor at the outset of the war, and while continuing my regular work in St. Paul, Minnesota, I undertook to get the Reserve established in the states of Minnesota, North and South Dakota, Wisconsin, and Iowa, for which I was Zone Director. The object of the Boys' Working Reserve, in brief, was to get boys between the ages of 16 and 21 to engage in useful work, particularly on the farms in summer time, so as to increase production of food. Helped in this work from May 3, 1917, to August 5, 1918.

Served as Zone Director of the United States Public Service Reserve for the Department of Labor in the states of Minnesota, North and South Dakota, Montana, Iowa, and Nebraska, from December 9, 1917, to August 5, 1918. The object of this Reserve was to register persons who were willing to give public service where and when needed and called upon. When the United States Employment Service was being reorganized to take complete charge of the recruitment and interstate distribution of common labor particularly, and also of skilled labor, for governmental war activities, I became Director of the Clearance Division of the United States Employment Service with headquarters at Washington, and served here from August 5, 1918, to June 3, 1919. The Clearance Division had the actual handling of the interstate movement of laborers for war activities.

In September, 1918, a Facilities Division was created at the War Industries Board to pass on all propositions for the creation of new war facilities throughout the United States. I served this Division as representative of the War Labor Policies Board to consider the matter of the supply of labor before new facilities were authorized at any point, from the time of its creation until the close of hostilities. After the armistice it was arranged that the cancellation of war contracts by the War Department should be submitted for concurrence to the War Industries Board and the Department of Labor so that the cancellation could be so graduated as to affect industries and labor as little as possible. I represented the Labor Department in this connection.

Since February 3, 1919, I have been Assistant General Counsel of the United States Railroad Administration, giving special attention to financial legal matters.

During the Second and Third Liberty Loan drives I was captain of team in Railroad Division, St. Paul, Minnesota; also served as Four Minute Man in this city.

WALTER ARCHER FROST

Occupation: Captain, Quartermaster Corps, United States Army Address: 1310 Connecticut Avenue, Washington, D. C.

ENLISTED, June 24, 1918, in the Quartermaster Corps, then National Army, later United States Army. I am still in the service, and hope to remain in it. I was commissioned a Captain, and still hold that rank.

Served as Assistant Salvage Officer, Superintendent of Shops, and Assistant to the Depot Quartermaster, respectively, at Fort Sam Houston, San Antonio, Texas; was Officer in Charge, Educational Section, Office of Quartermaster General in Washington, and, later, Officer in Charge, Camp Equipment Section, Domestic Distribution Division, Office of Quartermaster General in Washington. In compliance with orders I have visited Camp Humphreys and Camp Meade, Virginia; Camp Meigs, Washington, where I took the Officers' Training Course; Camp Sherman, Ohio; Jefferson Barracks, Indiana; Camp Funston and Fort Riley, Kansas; Fort Sheridan and Camp Grant, Illinois; Camp Travis and Fort Sam Houston, Texas; and Fort Brown, Brownsville, on the Rio Grande, the Border, also in Texas.

From February 6, 1917, until I enlisted in the army on June 24, 1918, I was Associate Director, Bureau of Membership, American Red Cross. In addition to this, I served from June 3, 1917, as Assistant Director, Bureau of Canteen Service, American Red Cross. My duties covered field work, in which I conducted eight membership campaigns.

Prior to entering the Red Cross work, I did volunteer work for the British Blind Relief Association, New York City.

ROBERT E. GOODWIN

Occupation: Lawyer

Address: 84 State Street, Boston, Mass.

IX THEN the United States declared war against Germany, I was Regimental Adjutant with the rank of Captain in the 1st Massachusetts Regiment of Field Artillery. National Guard. In May, 1917, I was assigned to duty with Battery C of that regiment, and took up the work of recruiting and organizing the Battery for active service. Shortly after I joined Battery C it was transferred to the new light field artillery regiment being formed in Massachusetts under the designation of the 2nd Massachusetts Field Artillery, National Guard, and which later became the 102d United States Field Artillery. On June 28, 1917, I was commissioned Major and assigned to command the 1st Battalion of this regiment. The regiment was inducted into the Federal service on July 25, 1917, and after a short period of training at Boxford, Massachusetts, sailed for overseas on September 21, 1917. The 102d Field Artillery went into the line at the Chemin des Dames Sector north of Soissons on February 7, 1918, where it remained until March 20. During that period I was in command of the 1st Battalion consisting of Batteries A, B, and C. On April 5 my regiment, with other units of the 26th Division, entered the line in the so-called Toul Sector, where it remained until the 28 June, 1918. On May 29, 1918, I was commissioned Lieutenant-Colonel and assigned to duty with the 102d Field Artillery, but retained command of the 1st Battalion until June 29. While in the Toul Sector I was in the following engagements: Seicheprey, April 20-21, and Xivray, June 16.

On July 5, I was transferred, with rank of Lieutenant-Colonel, to the 101st Field Artillery, formerly the 1st Massachusetts Field Artillery, National Guard, and with that regiment went into the line at the Belleau Woods about ten miles northwest of Chateau Thierry on the same day. The

ROBERT E. GOODWIN Colonel, 101st Field Artillery, A. E. F.

Marne-Aisne offensive began on July 18, and my regiment took part in this operation continuously from that date until August 5, supporting successively units of the 26th, 28th, 42nd, and 4th Divisions, and fighting over the entire distance from the heights north of the Marne to the valley of the Vesle River. On July 26, during the offensive, Colonel John H. Sherburne, commanding the 101st Field Artillery, having been commissioned Brigadier-General, was assigned to other duty, and I assumed command of the 101st Field Artillery, which command I held throughout the Marne-Aisne offensive and until August 23, when I relinquished command in favor of an officer of superior rank assigned to duty with the regiment. On September 8 the 101st Field Artillery entered the line between St. Mihiel and Verdun preparatory to the St. Mihiel offensive, and on September 9 I was again placed in command of the regiment. The regiment participated in the St. Mihiel attack September 12-14, and then immediately assumed positions, with other units of the 26th Division, for the defense of the new lines established by that operation, organizing the so-called Troyon Sector which extended along the northern edge of the Heights of the Meuse, overlooking the Plain of the Woevre. While in this sector we were actively engaged in raiding operations, the most important being the operation on Marcheville and Riaville on September 26, carried out as a diversion, preparatory to the launching of the larger offensive in the Argonne on the following day. Division, including the 101st Field Artillery, remained in the line in the Troyon Sector until October 10, when we moved to the north of Verdun and immediately took over the sector in the vicinity of Haumont on the east side of the Meuse. The regiment participated in all of the operations of the 26th Division in the Meuse-Argonne offensive, which terminated with the signing of the armistice on November 11, 1918. On October 26 I was commissioned Colonel, and continued to command the 101st Field Artillery, which command I held until the regiment was mustered out of the service.

The regiment sailed for home from Brest on March 31, 1919, and was mustered out of the Federal service at Camp Devens on April 29, 1919.

RALPH W. GRAY

Occupation: Architect

Address: 19 Congress Street, Boston, Mass.

ATTENDED the Officers' Training Camp at Plattsburg from May 12, 1917, to August 15, 1917, receiving commission as Captain of Infantry. In the latter part of August I reported at Camp Devens, Massachusetts, and was placed in command of the First Motor Truck Company, 301st Ammunition Train. On December, 24, 1917, I was ordered overseas, and given command of a company of casual troops which I took to France.

Shortly after my arrival in France I was sent to St. Aignan-Noyers, where I was placed in command first of a company and then of a "battalion" (practically a camp) of casual troops. Was directed to report for liaison service on March 17, 1918, and was sent as Liaison Officer first to the Staff of the General Commanding the 12th (French) Military Region (at Limoges), and later to the 2nd French Army (at Laheycourt), and subsequently to the 17th French Army Corps (at Regret, near Verdun). While with the 17th Corps, I served as agent of transmittal between the Corps and the 1st American Army, of which the Corps formed a part, during the Meuse-Argonne operations from September 23, 1918, to November 20, 1918. I also acted occasionally between the Corps and its divisions, French and American. Some three weeks after the conclusion of the armistice I was sent to St. Nazaire and thence to Tours, where I remained until my discharge.

Received citation of the 17th Army Corps,— Croix de Guerre.

"Ordre No. 13,102 'D' (Extrait)

"Officier de liaison detache près du 17e C.A. puis du 2e C.A.C. depuis le 23 September 1918, pendant une periode très active d'operations. S'est signale par un devouement et une intelligent activité de tous les instants, rendant à l' Etat-Major du Corps d'Armée des services exceptionnels."

ROGER S. GREENE

Occupation: President-Director, China Medical Board of the Rockefeller
- Foundation

Address: Peking, China

RECRUITED doctors and nurses in China for Red Cross expedition to Siberia, 1918; served as Chairman, United War Work Campaign Committee for China, during 1918. The Chinese responded generously to the appeal and brought the total to $1,300,000 American currency, thirteen times the original allotment. This was the first time that China has sent abroad any such considerable sum. Great enthusiasm was shown, especially in Tientsin and Peking. Probably the response was due largely to the feeling or hope that the successful participation of the United States in the war would introduce a new era in international relations, and would mean a fairer deal for the weaker nations.

HENRY F. HURLBURT, Jr.

Occupation: Lawyer and Trustee
Address: 53 State Street, Boston, Mass.

DUE to defective eyesight, I could not be accepted in any fighting capacity. Accordingly, in the summer of 1918, I applied for a commission in the Judge Advocate General's Department. It was not until early October that I was ordered to take the physical examination. This I passed except the qualification as to eyes, but this point was waived. A short time before the armistice I was notified that my commission as Major and my orders to report would be received shortly. The armistice came shortly after and all commissions were held up. Subsequently I was commissioned Major in the Reserve Corps of the Judge Advocate General's Department.

Served as Director, Wellesley Chapter, American Red Cross, and as Chairman, second Wellesley Red Cross War Fund drive and Red Cross Membership drive; was member of Wellesley Public Safety Committee and of Legal Advisory Board, District 33; was appointed Secretary of Committee on Hygiene and Soldiers' Dependents' Relief; acted as Registrar during the second draft registration; also aided in Wellesley Liberty Loan drives.

GORDON IRELAND

Occupation: Lawyer

Address: 32 Nassau Street, New York, N. Y.

AS sworn into Federal Service with New York National Guard under President's call on July 21, 1917, as 1st Lieutenant, Signal Corps, having been a member of this Corps for eleven years, and was attached to the 102nd Field Signal Battalion, 27th Division, United States of America.

Received assignment to Camp Wadsworth, Spartanburg, South Carolina, on September 14, 1917, and remained there until April 27, 1918. Saw service with the Army Signal Schools, Langres, Dept. Haute Marne, France, from May 25 to July 6, 1918, and with the 2nd Corps, United States of America, 2nd and 4th Army Areas, British Expeditionary Forces, in Flanders, Belgium and France from July 9 to October 28, 1918, when I was ordered to the United States to "officer new organizations."

While in France I was on the British front in Flanders during the whole period when the American Second Corps, composed of the 27th and 30th, National Guard, Divisions attacked and broke through the Hindenburg Line, starting, with the Australians, the German retreat in the whole of that sector. These engagements included the Ypres-Lys Offensive, August 19 to October 28; culminating engagements at Dickebusch, August 24–September 3; Ronssoy, September 25–October 4; and St. Souplet, October 14–21, 1918.

From December 1, 1918, until February 1, 1919, I was located at Camp Meade, Maryland; from February 10 until April 29 I was in the Statistics Branch, G. S., Washington, District of Columbia; have been with the Judge Advocate's Office, Southern Department, Fort Sam Houston, Texas, since May 3.

CHARLES W. JAYNES

Occupation: Tobacco Grower

Address: 81 Fern Street, Hartford, Conn.

DEVOTED my entire time for eighteen months as Volunteer Deputy Fuel Administrator for Connecticut. The work of this Administration was very important, as we were called upon to secure coal enough to keep in full operation fifty-two percent of the small arms and ammunition plants in the United States. This was very difficult during the severe winter of 1917–1918, yet not an important plant shut down because of lack of fuel.

Served as 2nd Lieutenant, 1st Lieutenant, and Captain, respectively, of B Company, 1st Infantry, Connecticut State Guard.

Was Chairman of Military Training Camps Association for Hartford County. Passed on majority of men sent to Plattsburg from this section. Later I was made Civilian Aid to Adjutant General of United States of America, in full charge of tabulating Military Camps of Connecticut.

Received commission of Lieutenant-Colonel, Ordnance Department, on January 13, 1918, attached to Transportation Corps, American Expeditionary Forces, and appointed General Superintendent of Transportation in direct charge of Troop Movement Bureau, Car Record Office, Lost Baggage Bureau and Car Supply Bureau.

On November 12, 1918, I was promoted to Colonel, Transportation Corps, American Expeditionary Forces, and assigned to Permanent International Armistice Commission at Spa, Belgium, on November 21, 1918, where I served as American representative on the sub-committee on transportation, which had charge of taking over from the Germans all locomotives, cars, motor trucks, telephone and telegraph lines, canals, highways, etc. Received my release on January 20, 1919, and returned to the United States after I had assisted in organizing the Leave Train Movement Bureau at Paris.

I have had the honor of receiving the British Distinguished Service Order; the rank of Officer of the Legion of Honor has been conferred upon me by the French Government, and the Belgian Government has awarded me the Croix de Guerre and Order of Leopold (rank of officer).

The citations for all three of the above decorations read as follows:

"In recognition of meritorious services rendered the Allied cause."

The American Expeditionary Forces also honored me with a citation, which reads as follows:

"Colonel Van R. C. King, T. C.—for exceptionally meritorious service as General Superintendent of Transportation in the handling of all movements of freight and troops and in the successful establishment of a Car Record Office; later as Transportation Corps representative of the Permanent International Armistice Committee at Spa, where he served with great credit."

WILLIAM GEORGE LEE

Occupation: Physician

Address: c/o University Club, Chicago, Ill.

RECEIVED commission of Captain, Medical Reserve Corps, United States Army, on July 15, 1917, and was called into active service on August 15, assigned to Company 1, at Fort Benjamin Harrison, Indiana, where I remained until November 1, 1917. Spent three weeks at Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, and three weeks at Base Hospital, Fort Riley, Kansas, finally receiving appointment in New York City with newly organized Base Hospital 116, mobilized by Surgeon General's Office, where I remained for three months, awaiting end of cold weather and coal blockade for shipment overseas. This unit served at Bazoilles-sur-Meuse for nine months; at Chateau-Thierry as Base Hospital, and as Evacuation Hospital during the Argonne drive.

I was ordered home on January 12, 1919, but was called back from Angiers for six months' temporary duty with the American Red Cross, in which time I had an interesting trip to Belgrade, Serbia, from Trieste, and then saw somewhat of Italy. The particular organization that I was assigned to was American Red Cross Auto-chair Number I, a motorized hospital outfit, designed for advanced operating on non-transportable wounded, which had been built by the Italian War Department, but was not completed until January, 1919.

AS accepted on August 19, 1918, as a candidate for commission to attend Field Artillery Central Officers' Training School at Camp Zachary Taylor, Kentucky, and given leave until October to close up important private and professional business. As I had deferred classification, I entered the Army as a private by voluntary induction at Denver, Colorado, October 21, 1918, and reported for duty at Camp Zachary Taylor, near Louisville, Kentucky, on October 24, 1918, where I attended the Field Artillery Central Officers' Training School up to December 7, 1918. After the armistice I elected not to complete the course at the school, and accordingly received honorable discharge from the service on December 7, 1918.

Sold Liberty Bonds as a member of "Denver Liberty Loan Army," and worked as speaker and solicitor in all war drives, including Red Cross, Y. M. C. A., War Savings Stamps, etc., from the beginning of the war until I entered the service of the United States Army; served as associate member of Legal Advisory Board to Local Board Number 2, Denver, Colorado, and as a member of District Board Number 2, comprising entire northern half of Colorado, under the Selective Service Law.

Belonged to the Citizens' Military Training Association, a voluntary organization formed in Denver for drill and study of military affairs, from March, 1917, until October, 1918; acted as civilian legal adviser to Adjutant General of Colorado, Judge Advocate's Department, from January 10, 1918, to September 20, 1918. Enlisted as private, Company C, 3d Infantry, National Guard of Colorado, on September 5, 1918, and was commissioned First Lieutenant of Infantry of this organization on September 20, 1918, with assignment to post of Judge Advocate, Judge Advocate's Department, National Guard of Colorado. Received discharge from this latter post on October 21, 1918, in order that I could enter the United States Army.

Served as member of Speakers' Bureau, Colorado State Council of Defense, from February 10, 1918, to January, 1919.

LEO J. LOGAN

Occupation: Clergyman

Address: St. Edward's Rectory, Brockton, Mass.

ON the 27th of October, 1917, I volunteered to serve as an Army Chaplain. Owing to the fact that at that time my family had already three representatives in the Army, my ecclesiastical superior, whose consent was required before I could proceed further, was disinclined to approve of my application.

In the ensuing year, however, the phenomenal increase in the size of the Army, and the consequent demand for additional chaplains, proved sufficient reason for overcoming all hesitation on his part, and my application was approved. Called for examination, I was successful, and was listed for appointment as Chaplain. The armistice was signed before I was called into active service.

CHARLES A. MacDONALD

Occupation: Lawyer — at present Lieutenant, United States Naval Reserve Address: 196 Whipple Street, Fall River, Mass.

THE day the United States declared war, April 6, 1917, I received orders to report aboard U. S. S. "Nebraska" as Watch and Division Officer. This ship promptly sailed from Boston to join the United States Battleship Fleet. I remained attached to "Nebraska," operational of the Control of the ing with the fleet until August 13, 1917.

British authority, on June 30, 1917, announced to the United States Fleet Naval Officers assembled on the flagship that the Allies had exhausted their resources to devise a means to defeat the submarine, had failed in all their attempts, and therefore looked to the United States Navy and American ingenuity to accomplish this problem in some way. He expressed the hope that the United States Navy would accept as its contribution to the cause the solution of this submarine problem. The convoy system was determined on to meet the situation. That there were so few collisions, when one considers the convoy was made up of from twenty-five to fifty ships of varied nationalities, manned by men who spoke different languages, is ample proof of the eternal vigilance and presence of mind of the watch maintained.

On August 13, 1917, I was detached from the "Nebraska" to establish a convoy office at Norfolk, Virginia, and became known as the American Convoy Officer. About the same time a convoy office was established in New York with an Admiral in charge, and a few months later one at Halifax, Nova Scotia, with a Captain of the United States Navy in charge. These three ports then became the places from which all ships cleared from the United States for European ports. Ships bound for European ports reported to a Convoy Officer, who placed the ships in the convoy sailing from his own port, or arranged for their sailing in convoys from one of the other two convoy ports. The ships were arranged in the best offensive and defensive formation against submarine attack according to their armament, speed, cargo, tonnage and destination. Other duties of the convoy officers at Norfolk were to inform the Army, Shipping Board and other ship operators of convoy sailing dates. and convoy requirements; see that all ships about to sail in convoy were properly equipped, provide a route whereby the convoy would meet the destroyer escort on time at a rendezvous off the European coast, scrutinize carefully all neutral ships and report all convoy movements to Navy Operations. Washington, District of Columbia.

As the available officers for service on the ships consisted of seagoing men and intensified trained officers without sea experience, none of whom had convoy experience or knowledge of submarine warfare, it was necessary, in order to accomplish the purpose of the convoy, to establish a school in anti-submarine measures. Therefore, two schools for Captains and Officers of convoy ships in anti-submarine measures were established, one in New London and one in Norfolk. The instruction consisted of lectures on convoys and the changing methods of submarine attack. Lectures were based on confidential information received from various sources, including German. The convoy officers at Norfolk gave these lectures and administered the Norfolk School in

About the middle of October, 1917, the same British Naval authority already referred to announced to the American public in the New York papers that the German submarine campaign was defeated, and that America's assistance was made certain. Thereafter the measures adopted were such that sinkings by the German submarines were never a factor to control the issue of the war. The total losses of all ships in all convoys during the war was ¾ of 1%.

On January 11, 1919, I was assigned command of U. S. S. "Vedette," just returned from convoy and patrol duty off the coast of France. Placed this ship out of commission and turned her over to owners in February, 1919. Since then I have been conducting hearings on collisions by or with United States ships, at #45 Broadway, New York City.

CHAUNCEY W. NIEMAN

Occupation: Manufacturer

Address: Wadsworth Hall, Arrochar, Staten Island, N. Y.

ENLISTED in the United States Navy on May 27, 1917, as Chief Yeoman, Naval Reserve, and was assigned as an assistant to the Secretary of the Naval Consulting Board. My work brought me in personal touch with about every Naval officer in Washington and, of course, with the members of the Board itself. Besides this, I examined several thousand of the inventions submitted to the Board, acting as a strainer for the good ideas. I was released from active duty on January 21, 1919.

Just prior to enlisting I volunteered as secretary to a group of speakers consisting of Henry L. Stimson, Frederic R. Coudert, Admiral Peary, and Frederic Walcott. We toured the middle "pacifist" west in the interests of universal service, under the auspices of the National Security League, and I believe that these speakers performed a notable service to the country by swinging sentiment in favor of the draft policy.

WALTER BLAKE NORRIS

Occupation: Teacher

Address: Wardour, Annapolis, Md.

Y work at the Naval Academy, Annapolis, Maryland, as instructor in English and History, began in 1907 and has continued ever since. This work includes a large share of the teaching of American history, European history, American ideals, and related subjects, including current events.

During a large part of the war I was engaged, with M. E. Spears, in the work of editing a book of patriotic selections, entitled "World War Issues and Ideals," Ginn and Company. This book was used for the teaching and discussion of American and Allied ideals by the Students' Army Training Corps Units and the United States Naval Academy Midshipmen.

WILLIAM THOMAS REID, Jr.

Occupation: Bond Salesman

Address: 14 Hawthorn Road, Brookline, Mass.

With all Liberty Loans, except the 4th, when I had to be away, and with the Victory Loan. During the 1st and 2nd loans my work was with the Publicity Department and the Speakers' Bureau, with much to do in helping the State of Connecticut get its supplies promptly and completely. I was at work with the Distribution Committee during the 3rd loan, and served, also, as a speaker, which involved a trip all over the State and out of it. While the Victory Loan was on I acted as State Chairman, owing to an illness of the regular chairman. My duties in this position were to see that every district, county, or town, had a chairman, and to arrange for bolstering up weak spots. I was on a Red Cross team, and was a member of the Executive Committee of Brookline during the Salvation Army drive.

As a member of Company G (Cohasset), 14th Regular State Guard, I was a Private, Corporal, and Sergeant, respectively, throughout a full term of enlistment, two years.

I served for about two years in the Intelligence Department, Navy Division, and had the satisfaction of being instrumental in landing one alien enemy in an internment camp.

CHARLES M. ROTCH

Occupation: Broker

Address: 157 Bay State Road, Boston, Mass.

WAS called into Federal Service on July 25, 1917, and drafted with National Guard on August 5, 1917. Sailed September 26, 1917, on steamship "Andania" for Liverpool, England, as Captain, Company C, 101st Engineers, and went from there to Southampton, England, en route to Le Havre, France. With Company B, took Company C to Bazoilles-sur-Meuse for construction of Base Hospital 18. In January, 1918, I was detached from the regiment and assigned to Provost Marshal General's Department, Tours; was ordered to Liverpool, England, as Assistant Provost Marshal and Assistant to Debarkation Officer. After the sinking of the "Tuscania," February 6, 1918, I went to the Island of Islay, Scotland, to bring back survivors and conduct burial arrangements for the dead. In March, 1918, I was ordered to Provost Marshal General's Office, Tours, and in June, 1918, to Camp Coetquidan (artillery training camp) as Assistant Provost Marshal. When the Brittany leave area for soldiers on Class A leave was being organized I went to St. Malo as Assistant Provost Marshal. In January, 1919, I was ordered to Paris for duty with the American Commission to negotiate peace in connection with war damages in Allied countries, but as much of the work that had been planned was given up I was transferred to St. Malo again in February, and remained there until the close of the Brittany leave area, on June 18. About 70,000 men were sent to this leave area, at an expense to the Government of about $1,500,000. Sailed for the United States on July 19 on the steamship "Zeppelin," arrived at Hoboken on July 29, and was ordered to Washington to report to Chief of Engineers. Received my discharge at Camp Devens on August 18, 1919, having spent a little over two years in the Federal Service, twenty-two months of which was foreign service.

ROBERT W. SEYMOUR

Occupation: George W. Wheelwright Paper Co. Address: 200 Fifth Avenue, New York, N. Y.

DURING the Summer of 1918, I did Red Cross Canteen work at the embarkation port of Boston; worked on two Red Cross membership drives; served as member of the Executive Committee of the Boston Trades Committee for the Third Liberty Loan; assisted with work under the Selective Service Law; took a course of instruction in field artillery during the winter of 1916; was connected for a short time with the bureau for returning soldiers and sailors in Washington.

I travelled some 12,000 miles for the War Labor Board as a field representative, and settled or forestalled many labor troubles. My work here covered the period from September 10, 1918, to February 23, 1919. During part of the time I acted as an examiner for the Board, and as such I wrote digests of hearings, or conducted hearings in the field, as occasion required.

GEORGE C. SHATTUCK

Occupation: Physician

Address: 205 Beacon Street, Boston, Mass.

DR. RICHARD P. STRONG telephoned me one morning to say that he wanted to see me at the Medical School. When I met him he said that the American Red Cross was organizing a Sanitary Commission of ten members to go to Serbia to combat typhus fever, that he wanted a "Clinical Member," and that he would be glad to have me go if I wished.

The Commission sailed early in April, 1915, landed at Salonika, and about the first of May met Dr. Strong at Uskub, or Skoplje as the Serbs prefer to call it. This town was our headquarters and the job was to sanitate the southern part of the country.

My special work was to study the diseases met with and to learn what I could about the diagnosis and treatment of typhus fever in particular. Near Skoplje was a well equipped British Red Cross hospital called the Lady Paget Hospital. It was a centre for the treatment of typhus and other fevers. Several of us visited it, were invited most courteously to live and work there and gladly accepted the privilege. I had charge of two large wards for several months until the epidemic was practically over. Then, finding little to do, I made a trip of a few days into Montenegro to see Dr. Grinnell, who was in charge there, and later went to Belgrade, where I spent two days with Dr. Ryan at his American Red Cross Hospital. After this Dr. Strong put me in charge of a group of his men who were doing sanitary work at Pristina, a typical old Serbian town in the beautiful valley of Kossovo. There we deloused hundreds of Austrian prisoners, inoculated them against various diseases and by their labor prepared for them sanitary quarters. The same was done for the Serbian soldiers quartered in the town, the police barracks and the hospital were cleaned and disinfected, a search was made for cases of fever, and a dispensary clinic was maintained.

Similar work was later carried on by some of our men at Mitravitza while I went with others to Prisrend, one of the most picturesque and beautifully situated towns that I have ever seen. We set up our cots in vacant barracks and messed in a small restaurant beside the river which ran through the town. When the work there came to an end I returned to Skoplje and finding nothing further to do sailed for home early in September, arriving in New York October 1st, 1915.

In the spring of 1916 Dr. Hugh Cabot asked me to join the "Harvard Unit" at 22 General Hospital of the British

GEORGE C. SHATTUCK

Expeditionary Forces at Camiers in France and to take charge of the medical work there for a period of three months. This I gladly agreed to do. We sailed in May, outfitted in London in June and took over the work at 22 General on June 9th, 1916. The transition from civil to military methods, the new problems, and the strange forms of disease made this experience most interesting from a medical standpoint; and to be taking part in work vital to the cause which we believed in was an added satisfaction. Our period of service ended September 9th, but Dr. Cabot had become so convinced of the vital importance of the war that he had already determined to take charge of the Unit for "the duration" provided he should receive authority from the University to do so. My own feelings being much the same, I gladly agreed to return with him.

In February, 1917, we were again in London and those who signed for the duration of the war were granted temporary honorary commissioned rank in the Royal Army Medical Corps. I was soon put in charge of the "Medical Division" at 22 General Hospital, releasing a British Regular Officer who had held this position, and receiving the rank of Major.

With others I soon felt a keen desire to get nearer to the front and, not being fully occupied at 22 General, Lt. Col. Cabot arranged for me to serve temporarily at a Casualty Clearing Station near Popernight in Belgium. There I was very busy in the autumn months of 1917 while the prolonged and heavy fighting for the ridges east of Ypres was going on. Nevertheless, I made occasional visits to Ypres, found opportunity to visit Waechaete and Messines Ridges and saw something of the trenches. Night bombing we experienced, of course, and once with tragic results. Although shells frequently fell in the neighboring town both night and day, the hospital did not suffer from them at that time. I returned to 22 General in September and remained there through the winter.

Liking to be within sound of the guns I again applied for Clearing Station work and April, 1918, found me in a hospital near Bailleul, a little town west of Mont Kemmel. Not long after this from the top of the mountain I looked across to Lille and the other great manufacturing centres around it where the Germans could rest in safety, knowing that the French would never destroy these towns. I thought to myself — The line here has remained for nearly four years unchanged; how long will it be before we enter Lille?

The German drive on Amiens was resulting disastrously for the Allies and we knew that the Germans would soon attack near us in overwhelming force. Already they were shelling Bailleul and towns much farther back to disorganize communication. Two weeks later our lines were driven back and orders came to evacuate the hospital. We withdrew to Ebbhingham where, from our camp on a hill, some of the guns in action could be seen. For three days and nights our artillery kept up a most intense fire to protect Mont Rouge and Mont Noire from capture, Kemmel having fallen to the enemy. Those were anxious days for, in possession of these hills, the Germans could have swept the country with their fire nearly to the coast; but they did not pass.

Later I was sent to a hospital farther back where we treated a large number of serious cases of influenza and where, in July, I saw American troops for the first time.

It was the 30th Division and they were a sight for sore eyes. They brought renewed hope and a smile of pleasure to every face. The war-weary British were delighted, and many so far forgot themselves as to show enthusiasm.

Soon after came the news from Chateau Thierry. All then felt that America was in the war at last. A burden seemed to have been lifted and men were gay.

To stray Americans like myself came a deep sense of pride and of relief. The tide had turned and would not ebb again, but none among us dreamed yet that the Germans would be utterly defeated within a few short months or that we should get home before the summer of this year.

The armistice found us for the first time established in real hospital buildings near the town of Tourcoing, north of Lille. There, on Christmas Day the wards were decorated and good cheer prepared for patients and personnel. The next day the officers had their dinner. I said goodbye to kind English friends, spent New Year's at 22 General Hospital, was demobilized with my Unit in London on January 14th and reached Boston with them on January 31st, 1919.

I was awarded the Distinguished Service Order by the British Government, the citation being

"In recognition of meritorious service rendered the Allied cause."

HENRY LEE SHATTUCK

Occupation: Lawver

Address: 60 State Street, Boston, Mass.

HAVE been Chairman, Board of Management of the Boston Branch, Army and Navy Y. M. C. A., since October, 1917.

As associate member of Legal Advisory Board of Local Board, Division 2, East Boston, I worked under the Selective Service Law from December 15, 1917, to April 2, 1918. My work consisted in aiding registrants to fill out their questionnaires. We met every evening for about six weeks, beginning December 15, 1917. Later I assisted the Government Appeal Agent in a review of the Local Board's classifications.

In April, 1918, I was appointed a member of Local Board Number 8, having jurisdiction over my home ward, to fill a vacancy caused by the resignation of the Chairman of that Board. It was supposed at that time, and was announced by the Provost Marshal General, that the heaviest part of the work had been completed, but with the acceleration of the troop movements new calls for men came rapidly, and in a few months Class 1 of the June 5, 1917, registration was exhausted. Our lists were combed for more men who might be placed in Class 1, and three new registrations were conducted, the new registrants were classified and examined, and, on the day the armistice was declared, we were about to send the first men of the September 12 registration to camp. After that I was engaged in the preparation of our records for shipment to Washington, and in supervising this work in the Boston District.

CAPTAIN in the Medical Corps, of the U. S. Army.

CHARLES ALONZO STRAW, Jr.

Occupation: Patent Counsel

Address: 312 Beechwood Drive, Akron, O.

ENTERED the service of the United States Army on September 5, 1918, with rank of Captain. Upon appointment I was assigned to High Explosives and Research Branch of the Explosives Division, Ordnance Department, the function of which was to prepare specifications covering the manufacture and tests of all high explosives and material used in their manufacture, in which line of work I had had some experience. While I regret to say that much of the work was desk work, it involved supervision over the manufacture of high explosives, and the outlining of a vast amount of research work along both chemical and ballistic lines, and the direction of such tests. The work also involved investigation of new explosives submitted to the Department for test.

I was located chiefly in Washington, District of Columbia, but frequently visited plants manufacturing high explosives. Received my discharge from the service on March 20, 1919.

ROGER D. SWAIM

Occupation: Lawyer

Address: 60 State Street, Boston, Mass.

IN May, 1917, recruited in New Bedford, Massachusetts, Battery D of the new 102d Field Artillery, and on July 25, 1917, was assigned to command it. Remained in command during the training period at Coetquidan Field Artillery School, France, which extended until February, 1918, when we were ordered into the line at Chemin des Dames. On March 19 the regiment was withdrawn, and on March 29, I was ordered to Songe Artillery School as 75 m/m firing instructor, where I instructed the 2d Battalion of the 305th Field Artillery, 77th Division. Served as Supervisor of Instruction of the 167th Field Artillery Brigade and the 54th Field Artillery Brigade at Montmveillon, La Courtine and Poitiers, from July 5 to August 5, 1918; was Director and in command of the Field Artillery School at Meucon, having the instruction of the 155th, 54th, and 7th Field Artillery

Brigades, from August 5 until October 18, 1918, when I was ordered back to the 102d Field Artillery, and assigned to command Battery B, then in position in Neptune Sector, during the Meuse-Argonne offensive. Remained there only five days, however, when I was assigned to command the 2nd Battalion, 102d Field Artillery, where I remained until November 27. After that I served Battery E, and from time to time the 2nd Battalion, until March 2, 1919, when I was finally assigned to command the Battalion.

I had been recommended for promotion in July, 1918, and on March 23, 1919, I was promoted to the rank of Major. Received my discharge from the service on April 29, 1919.

CARROLL J. SWAN

WALTER B. SWIFT

Occupation: Physician

Address: 110 Bay State Road, Boston, Mass.

IN Harvard Graduate School of Medicine, gave lecture courses on Speech Reconstruction for soldiers, and started a War-time Speech Clinic for the free treatment of wounded soldiers.

A bit of detail about these unusual courses called out by the demand for speech correction from war injuries will be of interest. The class was taken to the Warren Anatomical Museum in the Harvard Medical School. There numerous specimens of disease involvement of the speech mechanism were shown to the students. These included tumors, bone malformations, atypical skulls, and lesions in the nervous system. The students were also shown numerous photographs of war cases from the front, cases that had been injured in some part of their speech mechanism. Besides this demonstration of pathological specimens, this class was shown actual cases of gross pathological lesions of patients in the Massachusetts General Hospital. The War-time Speech Clinic was run in connection with these two courses and there treatment was given to the actual case. These courses were new courses given last summer (1918) for the first time, and the students who took them had the most thorough instruction in war-time speech correction of any group of students in America.

BRAINERD TAYLOR

Department, United States Army, in 1919. Held the rank of Captain, Coast Artillery Corps, United States Army, Major, Coast Artillery Corps, National Army, Lieutenant-Colonel, Coast Artillery Corps, National Army, and Colonel, Motor Transport Corps, United States Army.

Engaged in all major and many minor operations through operation of my truck trains repair and supply agencies directed from my headquarters at Langres, Department Haute Marne. Was personally present at Baccarat, Toul, Verdun front with 42d, 26th and 2d Divisions, in April, 1918. Present at battle of St. Mihiel, September 12–14, in vicinity of St. Mihiel, Vigneulles, Hatton-Chatel and St. Remy, and also at the battle of Argonne-Meuse, October 31 to November 1 in vicinity of Cheppy, Cunel, and Bantheville. Preceded Army of German Occupation to Coblenz on the Rhine.

On April 6, 1917, I was serving at Fort Ruger, Honolulu. commanding a 12 inch sea coast mortar battery. Had forty prisoners from German Gunboat "Geir." Was sent overseas in December, 1917, and assigned as Assistant to Chief Quartermaster, Advance Section, S. O. S., American Expeditionary Forces, with headquarters at Neufchateau, Department of the Vosge. On January 10, 1918, appointed Chief Motor Transport Officer of Advance Section with headquarters at Langres, Department of Haute Marne. Organized Corps of over 10,000 officers and men, and commanded it until January 20, 1919. Issued over 20,000 motor vehicles to the three armies and S. O. S., and all automotive supplies. Constructed and organized five Overhaul Parks (1200 men units), and five Service Parks (35 to 75 men units), in which were accomplished 59,800 repairs; constructed two supply depots, employing 1800 German prisoners, and carrying 90,000 different kinds of automotive spare parts. Established thirty-nine garages in Advance Section, from which 3,000 motor vehicles were operated day and night in Service of Supply.

In addition, organized many provisional truck companies which served at Chateau Thierry, St. Mihiel, and Argonne-Meuse, and in many less active operations. Convoyed supplies continually all through the war to divisions in rest areas and in the line, and to the Third Army during its advance to the Rhine. In December I was sent to Coblenz to select sites for an overhaul park and automotive supply depot, and to supervise initial steps in taking over 2,500 captured German trucks, according to terms of the armistice. Sailed from Brest, February 1, 1919, arriving in New York February 9, and was appointed Department Motor Transport Officer, Eastern Department, with headquarters at Governors Island, New York.

Organized Motor Transport Service for the Panorama of Victory in New York, April 8 to May 3, 1919, including parade of 7½ miles of motor vehicles in aid of Liberty Loan.

Received letter of commendation from General M. L. Walker, Director, Motor Transport Corps, American Expeditionary Forces, for services rendered in Advance Section, France, and from War Department and Liberty Loan Committee for services in connection with Panorama of Victory.

Received, also, Distinguished Service Medal, with citation as follows:

ROLAND G. USHER

Occupation: Professor

Address: Washington University, St. Louis, Mo.

PHYSICALLY disqualified for even the auxiliary service, I was nevertheless active with my pen, partly in books, editorials, and special articles, but chiefly in the national service undertaken by a select committee appointed by the Authors' League, which was to be under the same discipline as the army, to be at the call of the various departments of the Government, and to furnish within twenty-four hours' notice such copy as was called for. We wrote under the caption of the Vigilantes. For them I filled assignments, often requested from Washington, for the period of the war. I was also called upon by the Four Minute Men organization in Washington to prepare sample speeches, arguments, answers to questions, etc., which were then issued to the Four Minute Men throughout the country in the form of instructions. This work, too, continued for some months on various topics. I was also on the staff of authors preparing material for the New York and Cleveland Federal Reserve Districts of the Liberty Loan.

WILLIAM H. WALKER

Occupation: Physician

Address: 400 Washington Street, Hartford, Conn.

I HAD no opportunity to do any military service. Like most of the other physicians, I joined the Volunteer Medical Service Corps, but was not called. The hospital of which I am Assistant Superintendent was greatly depleted in its working force by the war emergency, and that meant greatly increased work and longer hours for those left.

LYMAN WARD

Occupation: Lawyer

Address: 115 Broadway, New York, N. Y.

A PPLIED for voluntary induction as a private into the Motor Transport Corps. The application was granted, and I was admitted to the service on October 21, 1918, at Camp Johnston, Florida, being ultimately commissioned 2d Lieutenant. Served this organization until December 21, 1918.

Before entering the service of the Motor Transport Corps I had organized and placed on a secure basis the Four Minute Men movement, and was its first chairman. After this task had been completed I became a member of the Legal Advisory Board. All of this work took many months of time to the exclusion of my profession.

FRANK WELLINGTON WARDWELL, Jr.

Occupation: Manufacturer

Address: The Wardwell Mfg. Co., 112 Hamilton Ave., Cleveland, O.

ROM the time the war started, in 1914, up to the time that the United States entered the war our concern was making heavy shipments of specialty machines, designed for resharpening various kinds of saws used in the production of the war material, to France and England, with some smaller amounts to Russia.

After we entered the war the United States Government, for the last six months, was taking practically our entire output. Large quantities of our machines were shipped to the American Forces in France, as well as to all concerns in this country producing Government work. These machines have all been designed by myself during the last six years, and many of them are doing work never before accomplished, and have nothing similar to them on the market.

In England my Y. M. C. A. work was such as was usual in connection with a Y. M. C. A. hut. In France I ran canteens, did a little educational work, and a good deal of interpreting, both for French as well as American officers, as well as some efficiency work in connection with canteens in the Foyers du Soldat. Most of the time I was at Monthiel (Ain) and Lyon (Rhône), France.

JAMES W. WELSH

Occupation: Special Engineer

Address: American Electric Railway Association, 8 West 40th Street, New York, N. Y.

WITH the establishment of the Division of Passenger Transportation and Housing of the Emergency Fleet Corporation, United States Shipping Board, I was called by Mr. A. Merritt Taylor, Manager of this Division, to act as Transportation Engineer. The purpose of this Division was to provide passenger transportation service to abate deficiencies in existing transportation facilities, serving the various shipyards throughout the country. I was put in charge of the New York District, and the work of our Department consisted in determining the necessity for new facilities and financing their construction,— and in improving the service in existing facilities in the shipyards in this District. This work was started in April, 1918, and after the signing of the armistice its activity was greatly curtailed.

As Law Adviser I handled the legal work of the Department relating to questions of neutrality arising out of the war. As Solicitor and chief Law Officer of the Department during the participation of the United States in the war I have had charge of all its law work. This work has involved negotiation and interpretation of treaties, consideration of international claims, and legal questions of all sorts in municipal and international law.

HAROLD B. WRENN

Occupation: Investments

Address: 2085 South La Salle Street, Chicago, Ill.

A TTENDED first training camp at Fort Sheridan, Illinois, in fall of 1915. Shortly afterwards became actively interested in campaign of awakening the country to its danger and helping therewith by distributing literature and interesting local bodies in the formation of training camps. With military, press, and private aid I made a tour from Chicago to Denver, Salt Lake City, Seattle, Portland, San Francisco, Los Angeles, and Kansas City, returning to Chicago.

When the United States declared war I immediately offered my services in the capacity of reserve officer of the line, but was unable to qualify owing to light weight. Applied as private and was rejected for the same reason. Had charge of the first draft registration in my precinct in Los Angeles. A little later, joined the organization of Four Minute Men in Chicago. Helped somewhat with Red Cross Work, also with Liberty Loan drives, and the various war funds, domestic and foreign.
